

REUNION POWER

January 11, 2010: Reunion Power, LLC is pleased to announce that the Office of the Attorney General of the State of New York has withdrawn the administrative subpoena issued in July, 2009 to the Company.

The Attorney General's subpoena sought information about the Company's wind development activities in New York.

"We are pleased that our discussions with the Attorney General's staff have led to this outcome, and we appreciate and share his concern that energy developers conduct their business in accordance with the highest ethical standards," said Steve Eisenberg, Managing Director of Reunion Power.

"We believe the Attorney General's staff came to understand that the Company has always upheld the proper standards. We now look forward to continuing to work with upstate communities to bring renewable power and economic benefits to New York State," added Eisenberg.

Reunion Power unintentionally missed the deadline to join the New York wind development code of conduct. Within hours of learning about the deadline, Reunion Power joined other wind power developers in signing the Attorney General's Wind Development Code of Conduct. This Code parallels Reunion's established internal business practices in regards to open disclosure and fair dealings with all stakeholders. In response to the subpoena, Reunion provided details on its past wind development efforts and demonstrated its compliance with the Code.

Reunion Power LLC, based in Manchester Center, Vermont develops clean energy projects and performs asset management and other services for wind and other power generation facilities. Reunion Power was founded in 2000.
